

Alcohol Awareness Month

In the US, underage drinking is a serious public health problem. Among teens and young adults in America, alcohol is the most widely abused substance. Drinking by young people poses significant health and safety risks. The consequences of underage drinking can affect everyone— regardless of age or drinking status. During this time of uncertainty and the need for social distancing, we are spending more time at home with our family. This is an opportunity to talk with your teen about your views on underage drinking and life in general. Start a conversation today!

Underage Drinking Statistics

Many young people drink alcohol

- About 24.6 percent of 14- to 15-year-olds reported having at least 1 drink. (2019 NSDUH)
- 7 million young people ages 12 to 20 reported that they drank alcohol beyond “just a few sips” in the past month. (2019 NSDUH)
- A recent national survey found that among people ages 26 and older, those who began drinking before age 15 were more than 5 times as likely to report having AUD in the past year as those who waited until age 21 or later to begin drinking.

More adolescents use alcohol than cigarettes or marijuana

The Role Parents Play

Parents can help their children avoid alcohol problems by:

- 1 Talking about the dangers of drinking.
- 2 Drinking responsibly, if they choose to drink.
- 3 Serving as positive role models in general.
- 4 Not making alcohol available.
- 5 Getting to know their children’s friends.
- 6 Having regular conversations about life in general.
- 7 Connecting with other parents about sending clear messages about the importance of not drinking alcohol.
- 8 Supervising all parties to make sure there is no alcohol.
- 9 Encouraging kids to participate in healthy and fun activities that do not involve alcohol.
